SKÁLAVÍK

Visit a rare wooden carving made in the church and for your evening dinner, enjoy a hearty meal at Hotel Skálavík. There are bicycles for rent and an outdoor hot-tub you can enjoy with a beautiful view. The new and cosy Caféin á Mølini opened last summer in a historical building.

DALUR

Traditional evening gatherings, also known as 'kvøldseta' are regularly offered in the village Dalur. The gathering features traditional Faroese culture such as wool spinning and carding, story telling, Faroese chain dance and local Faroese food.

SANDOY AND SKÚVOY OFFER SCENIC HIKING EXPERIENCES, RICH BIRDLIFE, LOTS OF HISTORY, INTERESTING ARCHEOLOGY AND COSY VILLAGES

Old walking paths made by footsteps over thousands of years can be found between the villages you can enjoy on your own or by booking a local guide at the tourist office for a historically enriching tour. For the fishing enthusiasts, bring your fishing rod because there are lots of lakes for fishing opportunities.

Sandoy is an island with a lot of history, sagas and traditions, that can be seen in the many attractions on the island. You can travel to Sandoy by ferry from Gammlarætt to Skopun. The ferry schedule can be seen at www.sslfo, route 66.

SANDOY AND SKÚVOY IN A DAY

SKOPUN

Start your morning by taking the ferry from Gammlarætt to Skopun. Here you can experience the narrow streets of a traditional fishing village and see one of the largest mailboxes ever made.

SANDUR

Sandur is a 15 minute drive from Skopun. Sandur is a village of archaeological interest and is also the only place in the Faroe Islands with coastal sand dunes. In Sandur you'll also find the cosy Kafe Breiðateig located in the heart of the village, in the old telephone exchange house.

SKÚVOY

Take a 30 minute boat ride from Sandur to the small island Skúvoy. You will find a fantastic birdlife co-existing with only 30 residents in the village. Because the population is small and remote, the island gives a rare and unique opportunity for people to experience life on a remote island. Timetable for the ferry can be found at www.sslfo, route 66.

LOCAL CULTURE

After visiting Skúvoy and arriving in Sandur, drive to the beautiful bay of Søltnuvík, where you can find the anchors and a memorial stone for the ship Principia, which shipwrecked in 1895.

Then visit the huge yarn-bombed rock in Bartalstrøð in Sandur where local women have knitted a large art piece with the saga of the old witch as inspiration.

We also recommend a visit to Listasavnið á Sandi (The art museum in Sandur). The opening hours are Monday to Saturday from 11am – 13pm, from June 1st to August 31st.
